CANDIDATES FOR HOUSE DISTRICT 94 SEAT WILL ATTEND
VOTER REGISTRATION DRIVE AT RUNAWAY BAY IN SPEEDWAY
APARTMENT COMMUNITY PARTICIPATING IN APARTMENT VOTERS COUNT

Indianapolis, IN (Wednesday, July 23, 2008) – While many people are focused on the weekend’s festivities surrounding the Allstate 400 at the Brickyard, others are focused on another race that will take place in November.

Republican Chad Miller and Democrat Cherrish Pryor will appear at Runaway Bay Apartment Homes in Speedway, as the apartment community participates in the annual voter registration drive sponsored by the Indiana Apartment Association. The two candidates are vying to fill the 94th District House seat vacated by Carolene Mays,

The apartment association is encouraging all of its member communities to conduct voter registration drives as Indiana and the rest of the nation prepare to go to the polls on November 4.

“Renters have a lot at stake in the upcoming State Legislature and we are working to raise awareness among the residents of our member communities about the importance of voting in the election,” said Lynne Sullivan, executive director of IAA. “We want to build on last year’s success. With the presidential and governor races taking center stage this year, there is more excitement and interest in the races. Last year was a pivotal year in property tax reform in Indiana and 2009 will be important as well as state legislators will vote on the constitutional amendment capping property taxes.”

Runaway Bay Apartment Homes, just off 21st Street in Speedway at 2030 Runaway Bay Drive, will register residents Saturday during its annual summer pool party. The party begins at 5 p.m.

Jill Meals Herron, vice president of property and asset management for Flaherty & Collins, which owns Runaway Bay, said that participating in the IAA voter registration drive is important on several fronts.

“Renters are often labeled as disengaged when it comes to the electoral process. We want to make sure that our residents are registered and to inform them on the importance of voting in November,” she said. “There are many issues facing Speedway residents. We believe in the importance of making sure residents vote for those candidates who believe in the multifamily housing industry Speedway and across the state.

“We are planning other voter registration events at our other properties across the state.”
